PROFESSOR GREAVES APPOINTED TO YALE

Well-Known Throughout Canada as Authority on Public Speaking

News has been received here of the appointment of Professor W. H. Greaves, special lecturer in public speaking at Victoria College in the University of Toronto, to the post of professor of public speaking at Yale University.

Professor Greaves is well-known throughout Canada as an authority on public speaking. For the past sixteen years he has been head of this department at Victoria College, and has lectured on the subject throughout the country before various organizations and the staffs of many companies. His evening classes, organized for business and professional men and women, have attracted fifteen hundred persons in five years. "Besides his duties as lecturer at Victoria and his evening lectures for outsiders, he has been instructor in oratory at the Faculty of Applied Science in the university, Saint Basil's Scholasticate and the Margaret Eaton School. During the summer term he has also lectured at the University of Chicago.

For many years he was in charge of dramatics at Victoria College.

Clear enunciation has been the speciality of Professor Greaves, and he has not only taught this in his college classes, but has been called in to demonstrate the art to the telephone girls. In going to Yale, where he will take up his duties next October, Professor Greaves is returning to his native land, for he is an American by birth. He graduated from Boston University and from the School of Expression there, after which he came to Canada. Before coming to Toronto he taught two years at Queen's University.

FINDS BIRD IN CHIMNEY

Port Elgin, Ont., Jan. 24 -- While cleaning out his furnace chimney yesterday, W. A. Mitchell, florist, found in the soot pan at the bottom of the tall chimney a large bird of the woodpecker species. It was easily captured by Mr. Mitchell. He took it into the greenhouse and placed some food before it. However, the bird did not touch the food and an hour later it was dead.

Light-Toned Sweaters For the Trousseau

Light-colored sweaters and pull-overs, which will be welcome accessories for the trousseau, are being shown in the shops. The colors are soft and pleasing: violet, blue, light green, yellow, and some scar-let, with geometric designs. The pull-over of jersey, knitted wool or silk is a useful article. It may be worn with the tweed, jersey or crepe de chine skirt.

Shock Over Death of Son Fatal to George Faulhafer

(Special Despatch to The Globe)
Stratford, May 20.—Unable to with-stand the shock of the sudden death of his son Eli two months ago, George Faulhafer, Wellington Street, died at his home yesterday. He had not been seriously ill, and yesterday morning had lighted the fire in the kitchen stove while his daughter, Miss Ellen Faulhafer, was at church service. In the afternoon his daughter found him dead in bed. He was 77 years of age. Born in South Easthope, he lived there all his life, with the exception of the last twelve years, which were spent in Stratford. He was a member of Cen-tennial Evangelical Church. One son, Edwin, and one daughter, Miss Ellen, both of Stratford, survive. His son Eli died in the General Hospital about two months ago from injuries received when struck by a hit-and-run motor-ist.

MARGARET EATON SCHOOL

A new note was introduced into the annual demonstration of physical edu-cation of Margaret Eaton School, taking place last evening at the Varsity Arena in the "fundamental gymnastics." These are exercises of Danish origin which differ from other systems in their perfection of rhythm and extreme smoothness of motion, the class pass-ing from one to another with no in-tervening pauses. They were performed by the senior class and the entire class took part in the new Danish folk dances, "Anders," "Roselille" and "Minuetten." The large audience con-stantly expressed by their applause their approval of the finished work of all the numbers of the program when illustration of the more technical side of the work was interspersed with the gay dog and English country dances, "Tink-a-Tink," "Shepherd's Holiday" and "Hyde Park." Joyousness and grace were expressed in the concluding group of aesthetic dances, including "Swiss Mountaineers," a Magyar num-ber and "Etude Joyeuse." Miss Mary

G. Hamilton is the director and the teachers are Mrs. H. R. Geddes, Miss C. Kaulbach, Miss N. McLennan and Miss F. Musgrave.

Globe 21 May 1929 P22

For to her Excellency the Viscountess Willingdon they owed a precious holiday in a busy round of lectures and practical instruction.

It was during her tour of the Edith Cavell Memorial Residence—her first visit, by the way—that Lady Willingdon came upon this little group of "probies" deep in a lecture on anatomy with Miss Gladys Sharp, a supervisor, demonstrating on a very remarkable "dummy."

Requests Holiday.

"Can't they have a holiday?" Lady Willingdon asked Miss Beatrice Ellis, the Superintendent of Nurses, as she said good-bye to the youthful students after spending an interested few minutes examining with keen interest the dummy, while Miss Sharp answered her many questions. The holiday was granted, and the "probies" smiled their thanks to their understanding new friend.

Upstairs and downstairs went Lady Willingdon, inspecting, admiring and questioning. The charmingly furnished sunrooms on each floor of the residence came in for much approval, and her Excellency's delight in the gay apple-green, gate-legged tables and Windsor chairs in the dining-room knew no bounds.

Dislikes Chairs.

She spied a half-dozen or so ordinary chairs in one corner of the large room and wanted to know the reason for their being there.

"They are a blot—I would demand a green chair," she declared. However, Mrs. W. J. Wilkinson, President of the Women's Board of the hospital, explained that the large family of nurses had outgrown the equipment and that more green chairs were on order.

Charming pink rooms, blue rooms and yellow rooms were inspected and admired, but her Excellency's sweetest words were reserved for those with mauve bedspreads, mauve curtains and mauve rugs. In one of these mauve rooms she found a long-legged French doll—also mauve—which amused her immensely. Upon the tour of inspection Lady Willingdon was accompanied by Miss Ellis, the Superintendent; Mrs. W. J. Wilkinson, Mrs. G. Howard Ferguson and Captain R. J. Streetfield, A.D.C.

Flags Bedeck Scene.

Union Jacks fluttered in the morning breeze over the entrance of the residence as her Excellency arrived at 10.30 o'clock, and was greeted at the door by Miss Ellis, Miss G. Rowan, Superintendent of Grace Hospital, and the supervisors. Members of both hospital boards and the wives of the Governors, awaited Lady Willingdon in the attractive living-room, where she was welcomed by Mrs. Wilkinson.

Miss Ellis told of the activities of the training school, expressing her appreciation of the interest which Lady Willingdon took in the nursing profession. Dr. Augusta Stowe Gullen, founder of the Women's Board and its President until a year ago, gave a short resume of its history. She remarked that when the Women's Board adopted the hospital it was a "poorly clad infant in most uncomfortable quarters."

Offers Congratulations.

"I should like to congratulate you on your fully clothed baby," said her Excellency in her brief reply.

An armful of pink roses tied with a mauve ribbon was presented to her Excellency by little Elizabeth Carveth, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. Herbert Carveth, and grand-daughter of one of the founders of the hospital.

Coffee was served in the library under the direction of Mrs. Madill, with Mrs. W. Inglis and Mrs. Beemer presiding at the flower-centred table.

Prof. W. H. Greaves Addresses Margaret Eaton Class

"Life is terribly brief," Professor W. H. Greaves of Victoria College pointed out to the graduating class of Margaret Eaton School at the commencement exercises yesterday afternoon. He felt the greatest urge to impress this upon young people today, as he himself has come to realize how rapidly the years were passing. He reminded the graduates that after all one has only fifteen or twenty years at most to make for oneself a position in life and that the first five or six are used in gaining experience.

Professor Greaves, who is leaving Toronto for Yale University, expressed his pleasure in the work he has done in connection with the school and his realization of the importance of physical education.

Rev. Frank Langford, Director of Religious Education of the United Church, also stressed the place of physical education as a complement to intellectual and religious teaching to make a whole life. He said that people who are below par physically are unable to study or to get along with others. The need for a physical director to have a well-rounded and interesting personality was shown.

mother received the guests wearing a navy blue lace gown with a corsage bouquet of pink roses. The groom's mother was attired in a rose beige ensemble, with a matching corsage bouquet. Later, the bride and groom left by motor for Atlantic City, the bride travelling in a smart grey ensemble. On their return, they will reside in Toronto.

BARKER-COWLES.

Smith's Falls, May 21.—(Special.)—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Cowles, Smith's Falls, was the scene of a pretty wedding yesterday, when their only daughter, Bertha Pearl, was united in marriage to F. William Barker of Smith's Falls, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Barker of Lombardy, Ont., in the presence of about 23 friends and relatives. Rev. Dr. James Semple officiated. The bride was pretty in her wedding costume of apple green, and wearing blonde shoes and hose, and a small hat to match. Her bouquet was of Ophelia roses and sweet peas. Miss Laura Hicks acted as bridesmaid, and wore a costume of sand flat crepe with shoes and hose to match, and a fox fur. Mr. Seymour Keir was groomsmen. The groom's gift to the bride was a silver fox fur, and to the
